

A Healthy Environment . . .

is Everyone's Right

How do we ensure that our rights are honored?

Alternative approaches are being explored, and our presenter Maya van Rossum is at the forefront of this effort. She will be giving a presentation based on her recently published book:

The Green Amendment.

It proposes using the ultimate authority, state and federal constitutions, as a means for environmental change.

Mya is an acclaimed environmentalist who is the executive director of the Delaware Riverkeeper Network. She has testified before US congressional committees, and has received numerous awards and accolades for her work. She has been on a whirlwind book tour since The Green Amendment was released in November 2017.
